

NCERT QUESTIONS WITH SOLUTIONS

1. Here are some false statements. Identify the mistake in each case and rewrite these correctly based on what you have read in this chapter.

(a) Leaders of the freedom movement had an open mind about whether the country should be democratic or not after independence.

Ans. Leaders of the freedom movement were decided on certain basic values and wanted India to be a democratic republic.

(b) Members of the Constituent Assembly of India held the same views on all provisions of the Constitution.

Ans. No, there were sharp differences on many issues. They were solved after long discussions and debates and a consensus was reached.

(c) A country that has a constitution must be a democracy.

Ans. Not necessarily. Every country has a constitution but all are not democracies.

(d) Constitution cannot be amended because it is the supreme law of a country.

Ans. A Constitution is not inflexible. It has to change according to the changes in society and reflect people's aspirations.

Ans. The pledge of service of the millions who suffer.

NCERT Basics : Class 9

(c). "The ambition of the greatest man of our generation has been to wipe every tear from every eye.

" Who was he referring to?

Ans. Mahatma Gandhi.

6. Here are some of the guiding values of the Constitution and their meaning. Rewrite them by matching them correctly.

Column I		Column II
(A)	Sovereign	(i)	Government will not favour any religion
(B)	Republic	(ii)	People have the supreme right to make decisions
(C)	Fraternity	(iii)	Head of the state is an elected person
(D)	Secular	(iv)	People should live like brothers and sisters

Ans. (A) Sovereign – People have the supreme right to make decisions

(B) Republic – Head of the state is an elected person.

(C) Fraternity – People should live like brothers and sisters.

(D) Secular – Government will not favour any religion.

7. Here are different opinions about what made India a democracy. How much importance would you give to each of these factors?

(a) Democracy in India is a gift of the British rulers. We received training to work with representative legislative institutions under the British rule.

(b) Freedom struggle challenged the colonial exploitation and denial of different freedoms to Indians. Free India could not be anything but democratic.

(c) We were lucky to have leaders who had democratic convictions. The denial of democracy in several other newly independent countries shows the important role to these leaders.

Ans. I would give the maximum importance to the second opinion. Freedom struggle was the biggest factor in teaching us the values of freedom of thought, expression and belief. It taught us that we had to be united, live as brothers and sisters to fight the common enemy. It taught us the democratic value of equality, how social equality was as important as political one. It taught people that inspite of differences, some basic values are accepted by all.

Second important factor was the quality of leadership. Gandhiji, Nehru, Bose, Azad, to name a few, were great democrats who believed in equality, liberty and fraternity. They believed that the suffering of the people had to be alleviated.

The British gave the Indians training to work with legislative institutions, but they were certainly not believers of democracy. They did not allow everyone to vote, they had all the power in their hands, they created divisions among Hindus and Muslims, did not treat Indians as equal to them. In fact it was the freedom struggle which taught Indians to value democracy.

8. Read the following extract from a conduct book for 'married women', published in 1912. 'God had made the female species delicate and fragile both physically and emotionally, pitifully incapable of self-defence. They are destined thus by God to remain in made protection - of father, husband and son - all their lives. Women should, therefore, not despair, but feel obliged that they can dedicate themselves to the service of men.' Do you think the values expressed in this para reflected the values underlying our Constitution? Or does this go against the constitutional values?

Ans. They certainly go against our constitutional values. The Constitution makes no gender differences. Equal rights are given to women. They can vote, take up any job, have property rights and are paid (according to the constitution) equal wages for equal work. The statement of 1912 makes women inferior to men and does not give them equal status.

9. Read the following statements about a constitution. Give reasons why each of these is true or not true.

(a) The authority of the rules of the constitution is the same as that of any other law.

Ans. Not true. Constitution is the supreme law. Its authority cannot be challenged even by the government. It is not like an ordinary law.

(b) Constitution lays down how different organs of the government will be formed.

Ans. Yes, it is true. It defines the role of the legislature, the executive and the judiciary and how they should be formed and by whom.

(c) Rights of citizens and limits on the power of the government are laid down in the Constitution.

Ans. Yes, true. The Fundamental Rights state clearly the rights of the citizens. They also state the power of the executive, lay down the rules of how the legislature and the judiciary can control the government.

(d) A Constitution is about institutions, not about values.

Ans. Not true. The Constitution contains all the values which the institutions have to promote. The Preamble to the Constitution is a shining example of this and states clearly that justice, liberty, equality and fraternity have to be promoted. Secularism has to be followed and socialism and democracy should be the basis of the government.
